Description

Skin problems may become more severe when the skin becomes more alkaline. "Mild" soaps often damage skin. They are often alkaline (pH 9.5-11), and remove the natural acid protection as well as extracting protective lipids (fats) from the skin. In addition, such soaps often have high levels of synthetic detergents, which both strip away the mantle and loosen the protective keratin proteins. Irritated skin tends to have a more alkaline pH, and washing with the wrong soap can increase this alkaline state and make the skin even more vulnerable to irritation and infection.

Earthwash is the perfect "non-soap" solution to clean, healthy skin and coat.

Ingredients: Purified Water, *Sodium Laureth Sulfate, Aloe Vera Gel, Glycerin, Citric Acid, Citricidal, Allantoin, Birch Leaf Extract, Birch Sap, Calcium Pantothenate, Clover Blossom Extract, Coltsfoot Extract, Wild ginger, Horsetail Extract, Inositol, Nettle Extract, Peppermint Extract, Sage Extract, Yarrow, Green Clay. pH 5.3-5.7 (*Sodium Lauryl Sulfate (also known as SLS) is a common surfactant ingredient in detergents and shampoos. It is highly alkaline and is very harsh. Sodium Laureth Sulfate (SLES) is a cousin to the SLS derived from coconut oil and is extremely mild. It is used extensively in infant formula soaps and rarely causes irritation.)
